

Scott of the Antarctic and J.M. Barrie, author of Peter Pan, were famous men in their day, but few people know that they were close friends. New research reveals what drew these two men together, why they were fascinated with each other, what dreams and sorrows they shared, why each secretly longed to become the other, and then what tragically drove them apart as Scott left for his final expedition.

Why did Barrie turn his back on his best friend and never see him again? Why did Scott end up as a hero after being beaten to the pole? The Mythmakers is the private story of two public men whose lives are as fascinating today as they were 100 years ago.

to speak of the ice is to speak of death

The Mythmakers

the unexpected friendship of Scott of the Antarctic and J M Barrie of Peter Pan a play by Rose MacLennan Craig and Richard White

with Jonathan Hansler and Steve Hay directed by Kenneth Michaels at The Charing Cross Theatre

The Arches, Villiers Street, London WC2N 6NL Sunday 18th March 2012 at 7:30 pm Sunday 25th March at 3:00 pm and 7:30 pm box office 020-7907 7075 www.charingcrosstheatre.co.uk tickets £15 (£12 concessions)

